

eDiscovery Fundamentals Electronic Search: From Keywords to Technology Assisted Review

This one-hour session will cover the pitfalls of using keywords to search for relevant electronic documents, and offer suggestions for improving the effectiveness of your search terms. It will also cover the basics of using more advanced search methods that rely on computer algorithms to discriminate between relevant and non-relevant documents. Our speakers will explain—and show through a live demonstration—how technology-assisted review (“TAR”) works, describe the different types of TAR on the market, and provide a high-level overview of the scientific evidence for and case law surrounding the use of TAR.
