Lessons Learned: Finding a Pathway to Success in the Transition between Private Practice & Public Service - Former Attorney General David M. Louie

For over three decades, David Louie served as the managing partner of a litigation firm, practicing commercial and construction defect litigation and insurance defense. In 2010, Governor Abercrombie appointed Mr. Louie to serve as Attorney General of Hawaii. In that capacity, Mr. Louie not only served as the State's chief legal officer and chief law enforcement officer, but also managed an office of over 150 attorneys and 500 professional and support personnel across the civil and criminal spheres. After serving a four-year term, Mr. Louie returned to private practice, where he once again handles all matters of civil litigation as well as government relations and procurement.

In this CLE program, Mr. Louie will look back in time and talk about the lessons learned and the skills acquired and refined in the movement between the private sector and the public sphere. Mr. Louie will discuss the pathways to success for attorneys interested in the transition to public service and for those considering the move to private practice. Come and listen as Mr. Louie provides practice pointers key to improving professional competence and relevant to practitioners of all ages and experience levels.
