

MoveMeHawai'i

A joint fundraiser of the BETA BETA GAMMA FOUNDATION and the HAWAII STATE BAR FOUNDATION

Join the Beta Beta Gamma Foundation and the Hawai'i State Bar Foundation for a special screening of

And Then They Came for Us

Recipient of the 2018 Silver Gavel Award from the American Bar Association

April 28, 2019

2 to 5 p.m., Kaimuki High School

Hear from the film's co-director and producer Abby Ginzberg, University of Hawai'i law professor Eric K. Yamamoto, and John Okutani, Japanese Cultural Center of Hawai'i member, who will discuss the forced incarceration of individuals of Japanese ancestry on the mainland and in Hawai'i and why we must continue to protect against suppressing the rights of people of any ancestry.

Here's How Your Attendance Will Help

Funds raised will be used to provide grants to educate the public about social justice issues, promote community unity, and support organizations providing legal or social services to the underserved. In addition to other grants, selected applicants will also be eligible for a $2500 People's Choice award voted on by attendees at the fundraiser.

More information on how to apply for a grant can be found at bbgfoundation.com and hsbfhi.org. Deadline February 28, 2019.

Stay for light refreshments and talk story with the panelists and organizations providing services to the underserved.

Your support (only $35 a ticket) will help to keep alive the important lessons of the past and promote community unity regardless of race or ancestry.

For tickets, visit:
<http://bit.ly/movemehawaii>

Questions? Email MoveMeHawaii@gmail.com